Sarah Palin -- The Candidate -- a Big Hit Abroad

By Michael Collins Piper

*F*ormer Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin made a big splash on her recent first-ever visit to Israel. Now a highly paid "analyst" for Fox News — owned by pro-Israel media baron Rupert Murdoch — Mrs. Palin is a likely aspirant for the 2012 GOP presidential nomination. Her very public adventures in Israel — apparently orchestrated to burnish her foreign policy credentials — confirmed Mrs. Palin's long-expressed, deeply felt, some critics say "over the top," emotional and political commitment to Israel's interests and its powerful American lobby.

While traveling about the Holy Land wearing around her neck what The Jerusalem Post described as a "large Star of David," a Jewish religious symbol — rather than the cross traditionally worn by devout Christians — Mrs. Palin also ostentatiously told one of her hosts, Israeli parliament member Danny Danon, that she had Israeli flags "on my desk, in my home, all over the place."

Mrs. Palin also announced she had bought an Israeli flag in Israel and intended to carry it around in America, possibly as a prop in her speech-making and political fund-raising.

Although Mrs. Palin strongly endorses cutting many domestic spending programs that help American citizens and urges trimming the U.S. foreign aid budget, she said during her trip to Israel that she vehemently opposes curtailing any of America's giveaways to Israel that are generally reported by the media to be roughly $4 billion per year, but have been estimated by former Rep. Jim Traficant (D-Ohio) to reach as high as $25 billion per year, including all grants, loans, forms of military aid and supplementary support measures.

Mrs. Palin's pandering in Israel is no surprise to those familiar with her record. As AMERICAN FREE PRESS demonstrated in its un-refuted in-depth report, The Power Behind Sarah Palin, the outspoken Alaskan has — from the beginning of her entrée onto the national stage — relied on a host of influential pro-Israel ideologues as her intimate advisors, most notably among them "neo-conservative" William Kristol, one of the chief architects of the U.S. war in Iraq, and one of the key figures responsible for placing Mrs. Palin on the 2008 GOP ticket.
